

Lebanon County Fire Training School Live Fire Training Property

RLS Construction Group was selected by the Lebanon County Firefighters Association to create a live fire training property, or burn building, where first responders can practice their skills in a controlled environment. The project involved constructing a one and one-half story concrete and masonry building, including all necessary site improvements. According to Lebanon County Fire School Facilitator, Charles (Chuck) Killian, the client is very happy with the construction of the building and the working relationship with RLS. Mr. Killian said that the communication, both during and after construction was complete, had been phenomenal.

"We pick up the phone and RLS is always there for us."
